

A collection of traditional French folk instruments is displayed outdoors. In the foreground, a mandolin with a dark body and light-colored fretboard is prominent. To its right, a harp with a wooden frame and numerous strings is visible. Behind the harp, a cello with a reddish-brown body and a white bridge stands upright. To the left of the cello, a tambourin with a dark frame and several metal jingles is shown. The instruments are arranged on a stone surface, with green foliage in the background. The scene is brightly lit, suggesting a sunny day.
